LYNCHBURG GENERAL HOSPITAL
SCHOOL OF NURSING
LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA

Foreword

In our hands we hold our future. That future is built on the experiences of the past and the efforts of the present. We, the senior class of 1967, believe that the hand is indeed the symbol of life. So believing, we present hands in many phases; in work, in play, and in service.

As your hands hold this book, our wish for you is that each page will bring you a happy memory of your life at Lynchburg General School of Nursing.

Appreciation

a teacher . . .

a counselor . . .

The Senior Class of 1967 wishes to show their devotion and appreciation for a highly esteemed member of our faculty. Many are the hours she has spent faithfully striving to make a success of everything and to be of assistance in anyway she can. As our class sponsor for the past three years at L.G.H., she has gone beyond her duty to help us attain success in our projects and goals. In addition to her role as Director of Nursing Education, she has always had time to answer our need for guidance. It is with deepest sincerity that we appreciate Mrs. Dorothy Marshall.

Dedication

It is with great pleasure that the Senior Class dedicates its 1966 - 1967 edition of the ECHOES OF YESTERDAY to Mrs. Betty Johnson, evening supervisor. We wish to express our devotion and respect to one who has given so unselfishly of her time and knowledge in preparing us for our lives ahead.

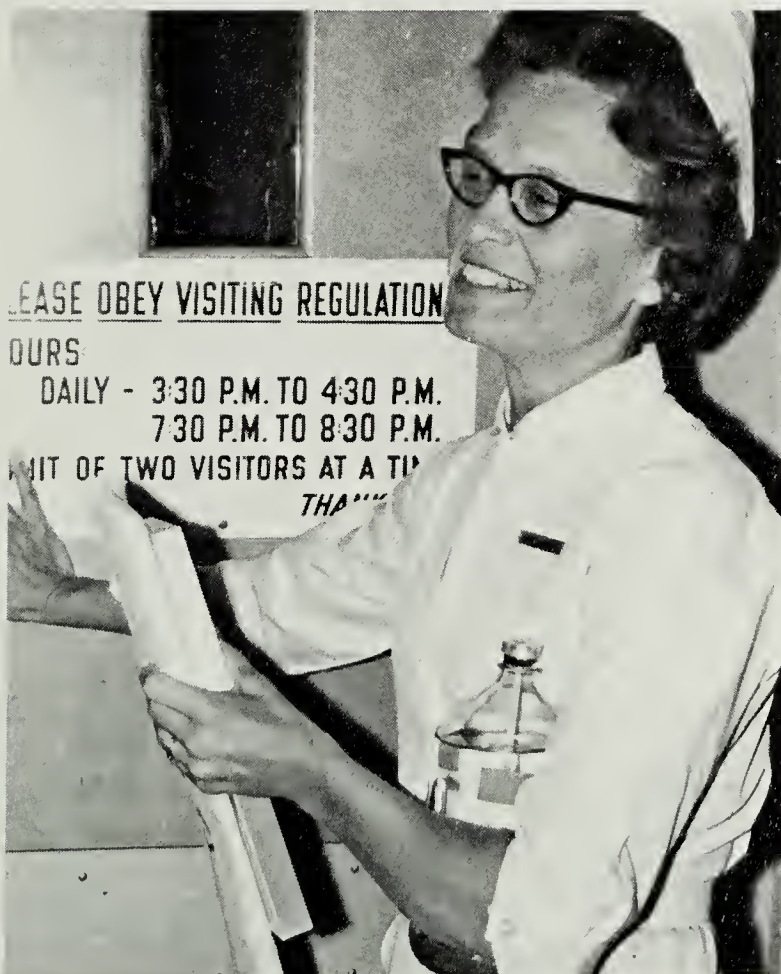

Even though her job as evening supervisor is time consuming and often hectic, she always answers our calls for assistance cheerfully and always finds the time to help us.

Mrs. Betty Johnson

Push a little harder, Dottie.

C'mon now, I could use some help!

I'll never get off by 12 o'clock.

ESTHER

1 And all the wives shall give to the husbands: honor, both to great and the princes, and the according to the word can:
22 For he said:
king's prosperity,
according to the
to every person, even his own house ever

CHAPTER 2

1 And these things, when the wrath of king Ahasuerus was appeased, he had done, and what was decreed, he had done.
2 Then said the king's servants that ministered unto him, Let there be fair young virgins sought for the king:
in all the provinces of his kingdom, the king may gather unto himself the most fair young women of the kingdom, and let them be brought into the palace, to the custody of the eunuchs, keepers of the women, that they may be sent for when the king shall please.
3 And he commanded the eunuchs, that they should search for the fairest young women of the kingdom, and bring them into the palace.
4 And the eunuchs searched for the fairest young women of the kingdom, and brought them into the palace.
5 Now in Shushan the palace was a certain Jew, whose name was Mordecai, the son of Jair, the son of Shimeon, the son of Kish, a Benjamite.
6 Who had been carried away from Jerusalem with the captivity of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, whom Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon had taken.
7 And he had brought up his nephew, who was called Esther,
for he had no other child.
8 And Esther was very beautiful, and she was loved by all that saw her.
9 And she was brought into the palace, and she was made queen.

The Nurse

Author Unknown

The world grows better, year by year,
Because some nurse in her little sphere,
Puts on her apron and grins and sings,
And keeps on doing the same old things.
Taking the temperatures, giving the pills,
To remedy mankind's numerous ills;
Feeding the baby, answering the bells,
Being polite, when a heart might rebel.
Longing for home, and all the while Wearing that same old professional smile;
Blessing the newborn babe's first breath,
Closing the eyes that are still in death.
Taking the blame for another's mistakes,
O dear, what a lot of patience it takes.
Going off duty at seven o'clock
Tired, discouraged, and ready to drop.
When we lay down our caps, and cross
the bar,
O Lord, will you give up just one little star?
To wear in our crowns with our uniform
new,
In that City above, where the Head Nurse is You?

A Student Nurse

Between the security of childhood and the insecurity of womanhood we find a fascinating group called "Student Nurses". They come in assorted weights, sizes, shapes, and states of sanity. They can be found anywhere: in hospitals, on the telephone, in bed, in OB, scrubbing in OR, and always in debt.

Patients love them, instructors tolerate them, and parents support them. A student nurse is at ease when a fellow student is by her side, and the protector of the patient with her procedure book close at hand. She has the energy of an exploding bomb; the shyness of a violet, the brains of Heaven only knows-what, the stories of the Army nurse, and the sincerity and aspirations of Florence Nightingale; and when she wants something, there is usually a shortage of help.

Some of her likes are: Doctors, Interns, male patients, and the opposite sex.

She dislikes; bedpans, enemas, bedbaths, wearing overly starched uniforms, some head nurses, hospital food, and getting up early in the morning.

No one else can cram into one uniform pocket: Bandage scissors, three safety pins, two rubber bands, two-pens-one red, one blue--a roll of gauze, a small note book, a comb, a lipstick, room keys, medicine cards, note cards, and a crushed pack of cigarettes.

She spends money on: food, nylons, cigarettes, stamps, and phone calls home.

A student nurse is a magical creature. You can lock her out of your heart. You can cross her off your mailing list but not off your mind. She is your long-away-from-home loved one, and your one-and-only good-for-nothing, bundle of worry. But all shattered dreams become significant when your student nurse walks down the aisle at graduation in her white uniform and looks at you through wide, teary eyes and says . . . . .

"I'VE MADE IT"

Now we look forward with joy and hope, and at the same time with a little sadness toward graduation.

But, as the hands of time move on, we shall always remember our days spent at Lynchburg General Hospital . . . . .

Vickie Panzarino receives a few tips on good grooming from Cynthia Torrence.

I'd rather fight than switch!

I'll drink to that!

How about a mini-uniform for graduation?

Remember the day we started I.V.'s on each other?

Hands of the Future

In the year 1977 ten years hence we take a look at our class of 1967.

Miss Dorsye Russell has given up her position here to head a leading local detective agency with Mrs. Bevers as her girl Friday. They have gone to great lengths to find out about each of our fellow classmates.

We find Cheryl Clark in Dr. Bryan's office as his head nurse.

Betty Mann is still wondering how she is going to make car payments.

Beth Liptrap is in Puerto Rico where she is half-owner of a banana plantation.

Linda McGuire has given up nursing to sell poppies on street corners.

Lynda Bailey is currently employed as McGuire's assistant for selling poppies on street corners.

Vicki Panzarino, now Mrs. Norberg, has just been awarded the world's safety record.

Carol Southern is head nurse of a prominent hospital in South America.

Ada Perry is still taking drivers' lessons and still looking for a map of Lynchburg.

Cynthia Torrence has written a book on "How to Catch and Keep a Foreign Doctor".

Bunny Kinzer is still touring Europe and David has reenlisted for 20 more years.

Judy Krause is in the process of raising her own baseball team.

Dottie Hite now is head mortician at Whitten's Funeral Home - even though her mother doesn't think it is lady-like.

Sharon Kiger has now taken over as head nurse on Pediatrics.

Brenda Strong is a Go-Go Dancer at one of the larger clubs in Roanoke.

Kay Campbell has gotten her Comet Cyclone and is driving in the Indianapolis 500.

Susan West is now the wife of the President of the Lane Company.

Janet Vercellino is the first lady truck driver for Mack Trucking Corporation.

Pat Price has now taken up raising one of the tamer members of the cat family- an ocelot.

Dale Martin is head of the Complaint Department of a downtown store.

Sandra Fullen now owns her own bakery with a number of little bakers to help her.

Becky McDowell is in Italy working at Ralph's Pizza Parlor.

Becky Scott is now a resident of Buggs Island.

Pricilla Jobe is the school nurse at a school where her husband is Principal.

QUIET ROOM

HOSPITAL CHAPLAIN
Rev. Edward O. Temple

Somewhere between a useless bustle
A scurrying, scolding, hurrying hustle
And a loitering, lagging stroll, too slow,
Is an orderly speed for a nurse to go.
How to gauge it? The answer's where She steps in time to a quiet prayer;
For she neither hurries too fast, nor plods
Who walks her ward with hands in God's.

On September 3, 1964, thirty young girls entered the doors of Lynchburg General Hospital bringing with them ambition, hope, and much uncertainty about their chosen profession. As they acquainted themselves with the new surroundings, anxiety became a mutual bond holding them together.

On August 28, 1967, twenty-three seniors will receive diplomas and pins which symbolize their profession. Their ambitions are fulfilled and the future is made more certain to them as they step into the future as graduate professional nurses, keeping with them the dignity and respect acquired at Lynchburg General Hospital.

... and the world will make a beaten path to your door.

It happens all the time in our country. People with imagination and ambition can expect to be rewarded. Each of us has the opportunity to fulfill our dreams ... to get ahead by building a better mousetrap.

In America profit and honor are rewards to those who make significant contributions to our way of life. This is because we believe in Free Enterprise, the economic system that has given us the highest standard of living in the world today.
